
Darker stages are structural boundaries; intermediate stages are configurable and support ablation or insertion.